

Traveling in style

Initial plans reported by the Wall Street Journal for the refurbished 767-200 called for a lounge area, several sitting areas, two bedrooms and a dining area. Unusual requests from founders Sergey Brin and Larry Page included hammocks hung from the ceiling and a California king-size bed, according to designer Leslie Jennings.

Lounge area

Primarily for CEO Eric Schmidt

Adjoining staterooms

Bedrooms for Brin and Page would include private bathrooms

Dining/sitting area

Includes large galley

Comfort zone

Brin's bedroom may have a California king-size bed, which can fit 12 passengers in coach seating.

Bed: 72" wide x 84" long

Seat: 17" wide x 21" long (base)
